The Ambassador

Dear Mr President

I had the pleasure of listening to the broadcast of your speech this morning before the Daughters of the American Revolution and I want you to know, Mr. President, how interesting and well-reasoned I found it to be.

I especially commend you for your statement that America's goal must be to create "a legacy of peace for all mankind," a goal in which my country is proud to share.

May I take this opportunity to convey once again the renewed assurances of my highest consideration and deep respect. It is my sincere wish that Almighty God will bless you and your family with His ever-increasing bounty.

*Very Sincerely Yours
as ever
Ardest Zاهد*

The Honorable Richard M. Nixon
President of the United States of America
